

Zim Ngqawana was a Heritage Musician

The National Heritage Council (NHC) mourns the loss of Zim Ngqawana who was an icon in folk music of its own genre. Sonwabile Mancotywa, Chief Executive of the NHC says, "At the age of 52 years, South Africa and the world still had expectations from Zim. His musical history will undoubtedly remain the heritage of this country. We remember him for his excellence and innovation in promoting the people's musical heritage".

The NHC expresses its sincere condolences to the family of Zim Ngqawana, his colleagues in the music industry and the followers of his music.